

SENIOR YEAR BOOK

Class of JUNE, 1919

Classmates

To our Fathers and Mothers, who by their unfaltering devotion and self-sacrifice have made our progress possible, and whose hopes and ideals have been our inspiration, this book is affectionately dedicated. 🌸 🌸

FOREWORD

THE appearance of this publication marks an epoch in the journalism of the school, for with it the "Tamarack" becomes irrevocably a thing of the past. Furthermore, the Senior Year Book is, in many ways, a departure from all previous publications. One of the most striking features, perhaps, is the elimination of all advertising. This feature adds much to the general appearance of the magazine, and it is hoped that the change will be welcomed by the students. Another thing which has been largely done away with in the annual is the literary section. The chief reason for doing this is the fact that the longer stories are seldom read by the entire student body. Space devoted to such material, therefore, is wasted.

Another notable feature of the annual, aside from the change in construction, is the manner in which it is financed. The money formerly obtained from advertising is now obtained by selling space to the different classes and organizations. The circulation is also carried on in a manner somewhat different from the "Tamarack" in that it depends mostly upon the Seniors for its circulation, although it is not limited to the Seniors.

We can only hope that the magazine will meet the approval of the student body as a whole. We have done our best to make it a product worthy of the school.

SEEKERS OF GOLD

ON graduation, the Senior is bound to realize, even if he has never done so before, that he is on a threshold looking out into the great unknown. But as he looks ahead he sees only a broad level highway. He does not see the many stony miles that lie around the bend in the road, and it is with a high heart, therefore, that he starts out in search of the Great Treasure.

Just so, for countless centuries, has every seeker of gold begun his quest; thus it was with Jason and his band when they set forth in quest of the Golden Fleece—they did not know that Scylla and Charybdis lay before them. And so it must always be with argonauts who go to seek in far places for gold and jewels. They go forth blithely, hopefully, and their gay young faces are turned skyward, but they come back, bowed, footsore, and scarred. Some, however, when they return from this journey bring with them the Golden Fleece, and in this here is encouragement for us who are now about to begin our Great Adventure. Because of the accomplishments of others we know that the Golden Fleece is always somewhere, and that if we but follow the right path we are certain to find it.

WHEN the class of June, '19, leaves North Central she will leave behind her many close friends. One of them is T. O. Ramsey.

To this class, as well as to all past graduating classes, he has been a constant friend and adviser. He has always done everything within his power to make the graduating classes thoroughly successful in their various endeavors, and for this sympathetic cooperation every graduate should be sincerely grateful, for each class owes its success, in a large measure, to Mr. Ramsey's assistance.

Class Poem---June, '19

Goodbye, North Central! We have sighed
To part from thee so soon,
But the long, free road of Future Life,
Lies white in the sun of noon,
And how it calls and calls to us,
And bids us come away,
So we must go adventuring
In the dawn of this new day.

Oh! we will go adventuring
With spirits glad and free,
And we will win the highest goal
And give the praise to thee,
Goodbye, North Central! We have sighed
To linger yet a day,
But the long white road of Life has called,
"Away, Oh come away."

DR. A. H. BENEFIEL

North Central has just passed successfully through one of the most trying years she has ever had and to no one do the students owe a greater debt than to Dr. A. H. Benefiel.

To assume control of an institution as large as North Central is no easy task at any time, but this year the situation has been especially critical. In the first place, the draft took many of the older boys from the school and left it, for the time being, almost without leaders for school activities. A school without leaders is much like the man astride the proverbial fence; its is doubtful which way it will go—forward or backward.

To this was added another and perhaps even greater handicap. The enforced closing of the schools on account of the influenza epidemic made it absolutely impossible to continue in the old track. To most people it would seem that this would have necessitated the elimination of all extra curriculum activities in order that classroom work might be kept up to the usual standard, and for a time it seemed that outside activities would collapse. However, no school activity has suffered any noticeable decline. Athletics have enjoyed their customary success in spite of the adverse conditions. Dramatics and music have gone on almost the same as ever, and certain organizations, as well as some classes, have been even more active than usual. In fact every activity has prospered almost as well as if conditions had been normal. And for this the students owe a great debt to Dr. Benefiel, whose careful, sympathetic leadership has brought the school safely through the crisis.

LOWELL C. BRADFORD

There are a few people who actually seem to thrive on work. Lowell C. Bradford is one of them. This year he has done sufficient outside work to keep many a man busy a good share of the time.

Several school activities owe their existence largely to Mr. Bradford's untiring energy. At the earlier part of the term he organized and set in motion the machinery of the Boys' Federation, which, along with the Girls' League, has become one of the most influential factors in school activities. Some time later he organized a boys' club known as the Kappa Sigma Pi, which now counts among its members some of the liveliest fellows of the school. His latest product is the Rooters' Club, a live-wire organization which already has proved itself to be one of the "necessary" clubs of the school. He also has been the director of the Sphinx Club.

LOWELL C. BRADFORD

Besides directing student organizations, however, Mr. Bradford has rendered the school another and almost equally valuable service as coach of debate and oratory.

All the foregoing amounts to saying that Mr. Bradford has been largely responsible for the revival of the old North Central "pep".

SENIOR HONOR LETTERS

The honor letter is awarded for conspicuous prowess in some extra curriculum activity outside of athletics. To receive it is one of the highest honors in school. The student, to get this letter, must not only be proficient in some field of activity, but must have a creditable scholastic standing for his high school career.

Those of the present graduating class who received this special award are: Claude Ammerman, for work with the Commercial Club; Geraldine Moore, for leadership in general; John Lawson, for art work; Lucile Hone, for vocal work; Paul Burroughs, for piano playing; and Guy Winship, for leadership of the band.

Joseph Tewinkle would have been eligible to receive this letter for editing the "News" if he had not already received one for placing on the scholastic honor roll.

SWIMMING TANK OPENED

"Come on in!"

"Is it very cold?"

These are the cries that come forth from the new swimming tank. The reckless "Frosh" no longer "skips" his vacant periods; he goes down for a swim regardless of all parental objections to the once dangerous sport.

Now, however, the parental objections are not as strong as in the case of the "ole swimmin' hole," for the parents are aware that there is no danger when the boys are in the care of responsible instructors.

The boys are not the only ones who indulge in this wholesome sport, however, for there are girls' swimming classes for the instruction of future mermaids. These classes are under the supervision of Miss Elsa Pinkham.

The tank has been the scene (whisper it) of several faculty swim parties, all of which have had a large attendance. We have become truly alarmed, sometimes, at the sportiveness thus displayed by those who we had thought were above all such fleshly things. We will soon suspect them of being actual human beings!

STUDENT SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

With the cessation of war, student activities began to revert to a pre-war standard. Especially was this true of social activities. Where "hard-time" parties were given during the war, banquets and elaborate affairs became the rule after the restraint was removed. Among the elaborate affairs were the senior banquet and dance, the Masque banquet, the Delta dance, and the "Prom" given by the class of March, '19.

This spring, practically every organization had its picnic, whereas last year, all elaborate functions of this sort were forbidden. The senior picnic, which was held again this year at Liberty Lake, was highly successful. Many other classes, as well as most of the clubs, also picnicked at the nearby lakes.

"THE JAPANESE GIRL"

"The Japanese Girl", an operetta presented by the Music department on April 25, added another triumph to the already long list for the department. This production was one of the best staged, best directed, and best acted of all the operettas North Central has seen.

A most notable feature was the fact that the entire cast consisted of girls, but the loss of male voices did not seem to be a handicap.

To Mr. Rice, Miss Motie, and Miss Stowell, North Central owes thanks for the success of the operetta, not only for the fine musical reputation it gives the school, but also for the delectable evenings' entertainment it furnished us.

"VOX" AWARD TO MARTHA THOMSON

Martha Thomson was awarded the prize of ten dollars which is given each semester by the Vox Puellarum to the girl in the graduating class who has shown the greatest development in personality, the greatest ability in overcoming obstacles, as well as having maintained a high standard of scholarship.

The award was decided by a committee consisting of Lucile Hone, Miss N. Wilson, Dorothy Farr, Louise Leslie, Miss Jessie Gibson, and Dr. A. H. Benefiel.

THE S. A. R. CONTEST

A notable feature among oratorical events this year was the revival of the Sons of the American Revolution oratorical contest, which had not been held for two years on account of the war.

Robert Zimmerman, a member of the freshman "B" class, showed unusual ability by defeating several of the best orators of the school for first honors. His subject was, "The Influence of France on the War of the American Revolution."

Lawrence Seltzer won second place with his oration, "The Relation of George III to the American Revolution."

ATHLETIC BOARD TAKES GIRL MEMBER

On being elected captain of the girls' swimming team, Lucile Hone became the first girl member of the Athletic Board. This was the first step towards the broadening of interscholastic athletics so as to include both girls and boys. This year, for the first time, the girls were permitted to enter interscholastic athletics, and the event, therefore, is a milepost in the history of the school.

THE WALLA WALLA DECLAMATION
CONTEST

Taking two out of three places, North Central won the Walla Walla declamation contest this year, this making the fourth consecutive time. Leone Webber, with the selection, "At the Movies", made the hit of the evening for the humorous department. Lucile Swanson won for the dramatic department with her reading, "The Bad Angel". Gordon Onstad of Walla Walla won the place in the oratorical division with his oration, "Emmett on Being Found Guilty of Treason". His opponent, Del Cary Smith of North Central, seemed to be handicapped by a selection unsuited to his ability.

"OUTWITTING SOCIETY"

"Outwitting Society", the play presented by the Senior "A" class May 29, added another name to the list of plays that have been successfully directed by Miss Marguerite Motie. The play was excellently acted and was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

THE CAST OF "OUTWITTING SOCIETY"

COMMENCEMENT NIGHT

*This is the hour of parting,
Oh! what shall we say?
"Goodbye" or "Goodnight, friends?"
When we go away?
"Goodbye" has a sound of sorrow,
Let us say "Goodnight!"
And "Good luck, comrades, always,
And long years and bright."*

*We shall not meet tomorrow,
As we did in other days,
For tonight is the "Last Time," comrades;
We must part and go our ways,
Let your handclasp be hearty,
And your parting smile bright
Let friend not say to friend, "Goodbye,"
Let him only say, "Goodnight!"*

DREAMS

*My heart would always wander
On galleons of Spain—
Galleons laden with plunder

*My day dreams they are haunted
By dusty caravans
That carry wares enchanted
Across the shimmering sands.*

*Before my eyes the vision
Of Babylon and Tyre
Gleams like a scene Elysian,
Lit with celestial fire.*

—ELLIOTT TARBELL

MY LOVED ONE, YOU WILL COME AT LAST

*My loved one, you will come at last,
Like lilacs in the spring
You'll take my heart, and hold it fast,
And still its murmuring.*

*I do not know how we shall meet;
I do not know or care—
I only know you will be sweet
As flower-perfumed air.*

*I only know that you will be
All radiant like a dream—
A creature brought to earth for me
On some star's fluttering beam.*

*But loved one, you will come at last
Like lilacs in the spring
You'll take my heart, and hold it fast,
And still its murmuring.*

—ELLIOTT TARBELL

TO THOSE RETURNED FROM WAR

*You who have known the battle's sullen clamor,
And toiled beneath dark skies of Death's own hue—
You who have tasted war without its glamor—
How fair must seem this land that you once knew!*

*Glad must you be to walk in your own gardens,
Or sleep beneath your shady maple trees,
Far from the battle's raging storm that hardens
The hearts of men to senseless butcheries!*

*But glad though you be, husband, and son, and brother,
Upon returning to the life you've known,
You are not gladder than the wife or mother
Who sees again the faces of her own!*

ATHLETICS

North Central Is Winner at Pullman

In the annual Pullman meet this year, North Central duplicated last year's performance and romped away with high point honors for the contest. Until the twelfth event the South Siders had the lead, but in the javelin event North Central forged ahead and maintained her advantage through the rest of the meet.

The bright star of the day was Maurice Saffle, who took first in the 50, 100, and 220 yard dashes, the broad jump and as well as putting up a brilliant race in the relay. This was a most remarkable performance when it is considered that Saffle had never before competed in an interscholastic contest.

Lower was second high point winner for North Central and was the third high point man of the meet.

OUR TRACK TEAM

North Central Victorious in Dual Meet

In the closest contest ever fought between the two schools, North Central defeated Lewis and Clark in the dual meet this year by the narrow margin of three points. The score was 67 to 64. Maurice Saffle, North Central's phenomenal sprinter, carried away 26 $\frac{1}{4}$ of those points, thereby breaking the high point record made by Evan Pearson. Hilkiker, the "pinch hitter" of the day, took eleven more points and saved the meet for North Central. Lower was the third high point man for North Central with 6 $\frac{1}{4}$ points to his credit.

Until the last race was run the outcome was in doubt. The teams were so evenly matched that it seemed impossible to forecast the results of most of the events. Sometimes one school would take the lead, only to be nosed out by her opponent in the next event.

Never has North Central won a sweeter victory. Few high schools could boast of such a splendid team as the South Siders entered in the meet, and North Central may well be proud at having defeated such stellar performers. Hutsell, the Lewis and Clark distance man, is especially deserving of mention. After winning the half mile he ran the mile in 4:42.5, which is within two-fifths of a second of the record. To defeat a team which has such men is, indeed, a very rare honor.

North Central Wins Baseball Series

FIRST DUEL

All dope was "sent west" when "Ajax" Byersdorf beat Sorenson of the south siders of twirling honors, and, incidentally, of the game in the first battle between Lewis and Clark and North Central. Our south side friends were a bit over-confident; batting honors were evenly divided between Matlock of North Central, and Skadan of Lewis and Clark, who did his best for the aristocrats. It was a good game, and we merited the bacon. We got it! N. C., 3; L. and C., 1.

Second Dropfest

That scores mean nothing was clearly demonstrated at the second meeting of the "gang." Lewis and Clark can thank the gods that he that North Central was a trifle off color. The game was marked by costly errors and much erratic fielding. We deserved to lose. We did! L. and C., 5; N. C., 2.

Third Act, Same Scene

The scorekeeper was praying for an adding machine at the close of the third waltz. Bystanders agree that he needed it. Lewis and Clark had the game on ice in the ninth inning with a score of 7 to 5, but Hawes' men came around in great style and walloped the horsehide for two runs, tying the score. Esther didn't see the ball in the tenth, while North Central borrowed three runs from Sorenson. Did we win? We did! N. C., 10; L. and C., 7.

Elsie walked roughly over our pitching staff in the fourth game. Credit to those "who deserve" it; they sure found our pitchers and nine stepped off with the game. Yep, we lost. L. and C., 9; N. C., 5.

Ye Raspberry, 5 to 4

Probably the sporting annals of North Central do not contain record of a better championship game than the one of this year. Elsie fought tooth and nail every minute of sixteen splendid innings; that she lost is not to her discredit. North Central was never more evenly matched; it was just a repetition of the survival of the fittest. We thank Byersdorf's pitching ability and the support of the team we're proud of, for packing home the trophy. Incidentally, this makes the fourth major sport taken by North Central this year. A clean sweep! North Central dead? Who said that?

YOUR "NEWS"

With the publication of this, the final paper of the school year, it is fitting the "News" say a word in valedictory. We can ask no praise, it was all for North Central and she expects every one to do her duty, without words, without praise.

The "News" has made mistakes, has offended some persons. For these errors we crave pardon—they were not intentional ones.

Certain people and organizations believe that they have been slighted, and yet it is difficult, almost impossible, to give extensive attention to all the clubs, classes, teachers, and individuals. Understand, though, it is not our intention to defend ourselves for any errors of oversight and omission, merely to offer a word of explanation.

At times, we have not maintained the punctilious ratio between scholastic and athletic achievement. It may be laid, at least, partially, to our inexperience—not to intentional enmity or partiality.

Reaching too high, we have sometimes fallen below our standard and disappointed you. The staff was just as disappointed as you were.

We have criticized, perchance unjustly at times; but we have never done it but with the ultimate aim of a bigger North Central in view. We have meant no affront. Can it not be taken in the same spirit it was given?

Passing from our mistakes and oversights, we must here offer a word of thanks to the student body and our faculty for their loyal co-operation and support, despite our errors. To our advertisers, the finest group of business men of whom our city boasts, we must extend our fullest appreciation for the consistent and whole-hearted backing which has made the paper possible.

Above all, with no credit in view save to make the "News", which is "owned by the students of the North Central High School", a paper worthy of such a school, and student corps, we have striven to please YOU!

ORGANIZATIONS

The Boys' Federation

Since its organization last fall the Boys' Federation has been a dominant factor in school activities. No organization in the school, perhaps, has exerted a wider influence.

The reason for this is that the Boys' Federation is not in any way limited as to membership; it includes every boy in the school and, therefore, every boy knows that he is not an outsider but a stockholder in the organization. As a consequence of this every boy feels that it is to his interests to do everything in his power to help the Federation for it is his Federation. This spirit is exactly the thing which the founders of the organization hoped to obtain when they drew up the original plans. They saw that, under the system existing at that time, many of the boys of the school must of necessity be left out, and they set about to find a means to utilize this dormant energy. The Boys' Federation was the means adopted.

In the early period of its existence the organization devoted itself chiefly to the all-important task of winning the war. This work was managed by the National Service Department which has done the greater part of the work accomplished by the Federation this year. In the Liberty Loan drive the Federation assisted the city by circulating posters and advertising matter. A number of four-minute men were also selected to talk in the interests of the drive. Money was raised for the purchase of one hundred dollars' worth of Thrift Stamps, and the Girls' League was aided in its drive for the purpose of getting a fifty dollar bond.

A further work accomplished by the National Service Department was the direction of the Victory Ad Contest which was open to all students of the school. The plan for this contest was originated by W. J. Sanders, head of the English Department, and was given to the students in the English department. The managing of the contest, however, was left to the National Service Department of the Boys' Federation, of which department Oscar Zabel is the head. In fact, Zabel has done more work in the organization for the past semester than any one boy in the school.

Among the less important activities of the semester in which the National Service Department had a part was the old clothes drive, which was started by the Girls' League.

The Community Service Department has done work of a more local nature, but which, in many ways has been just as important as that of the National Service Department.

Its greatest work, probably, was the reformation of the Library Board. For some time the inadequacy of the library system had been apparent, and means had been sought to eliminate the faults of the Board. The officers of the Girls' League and the Boys' Federation conferred and formed a new plan. The number of library monitors was increased and the method of selecting officers was changed. Whereas, the officers for the Board were once elected by the students, they are now appointed by the heads of the Girls' League and the Boys' Federation.

Among other things this department has formed a scholarship committee, the work of which is to coach those students who are in need of special instruction in some subject.

The department has attempted to bring back the boys who have dropped out of school, and in a large number of cases has been successful.

Among the other various activities of the organization is the Clean-Up Committee, which has the work of keeping the grounds free from rubbish. This committee by the use of the very effective "Official paddle" has kept the grounds in better condition than ever before.

The latest product of the Federation is the Rooters' Club, the purpose of which is to form a nucleus of rooters at the various interscholastic contests.

THE GIRLS' LEAGUE

The Girls' League was organized at North Central in March, 1918, after a year's investigation and study of the work done for the girl students by other large high schools. In a group of 1000 girls, such as there is in our school, many, of necessity, become submerged and receive little benefit from the activities of the school, and from contact with their fellow students. The opportunity to develop initiative, the ability to carry out responsible tasks, and to acquire social poise, are all valuable by-products of our school system, which seems, in many cases, to be lost; and it is for the purpose of the Girls' League to secure these, as far as possible, for each girl enrolled at North Central. It will thus be seen that the concrete results attained by the work of the league, however valuable they may be, are incidental to the real end in view. That end, as stated in the constitution, is: "To develop through co-operative activities, involving every girl in the North Central High School, a broad group sympathy and fellowship, and an active loyalty to the highest interests of the school, the community, and the nation."

A brief review of the work of the league since its organization will probably give a better idea of the magnitude of its work and the true worth of such an organization.

More than thirteen hundred dollars has passed through the hands of the various treasurers. This money was obtained, in part, from the dues of ten cents a semester, and in part from various activities in which the league has actively participated. At the request of Dr. A. H. Benefiel and in co-operation with the Boys' Federation, the league has helped to form and maintain the Library Board, which is a student government board in the library.

At the request of Miss Pattee of the Bryant School, a branch of the Girls' League has been formed there among the girls of the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades. This interests them in high school and prepares them for active work in the league, aside from the immediate benefit they receive. Other North Side grade schools are now asking for similar organizations.

The league has held two parties, one to acquaint and familiarize the freshmen girls with the standards and ideals of the school; the other being held in honor of the Senior "A" girls.

One edition of The News, in November, 1918, was edited by the league and placed in the hands of North Central boys in the service.

The league as a whole urges high standards of scholarship and conduct and offers a place on its honor roll and a league pin for service in the league, good scholarship, and high ideals, an expressed in general conduct. The league pin is made in the form of the league emblem, which consists of the American and Red Cross flags crossed behind a girl's head, with the motto, "Honor, Service, Loyalty". The girl represents the personal side, "honor" the Red Cross flag, "service" and the American flag, "loyalty".

The rest of the work of the league is done through three departments: the Social Service, the Entertainment, and the Personal Efficiency departments. Each department is managed by a girl director and a faculty advisor.

The Social Service department does its work largely through eight committees: the Absent and Sick Girls' committee, the Scholarship committee, the New Girls' committee, the Philanthropic committee, the Halls committee, the Vocational committee, the Freshmen committee, and the Convocation committee. The object of each of these is clearly suggested by the title. The Social Service department accomplishes much of the work of the league, although each department is indispensable to the success of such an organization.

The Personal Efficiency department, organized in sixteen groups, has charge of all the girls' sports, gymnasium, and swimming pool activities.

All activities of the Girls' League have a definite educational value, aside from the results obtained, and all girls are urged to take an active part and choose their department with two things in mind: where they can gain the most for themselves, and where they can do the most for the school. The growth of a sense of obligation, both in self-development, through taking advantage of opportunities, and in service to others, ought to make better citizens. Those not becoming interested are called in by the girls' advisor, and the results of these conferences have been most satisfactory up to this time.

The faculty as a whole has been most helpful and appreciative, but those who have given their time and interest to act as advisors for each department and whose assistance has helped make the league a success are: Miss Helen McDouall, in the Social Service department; Miss Marguerite Motie, in the Entertainment department, assisted by Miss Vera Bonsall; and Miss Elsa Pinkham, in the Personal Efficiency department.

It is the work of the girls' advisor to have general charge of all activities of the league and its departments, to assist in all departments and correlate their work, and in her vacant periods attend to anything which the department advisors can not. She also has charge of the work of all officers and advises them, directs the Central Council, which is the executive body of the league and meets once in two weeks. It is her duty also to advise and consult with all girls in any way and on any subject deemed advisable. This most important office has been very successfully filled by Miss Gibson, who undoubtedly is responsible for the successful work which this organization has accomplished in the past. The success of the league has exceeded the most sanguine expectations, and has demonstrated to even the most doubting individual that such a league is indispensable to the welfare of the girls.

The league has done a great deal in patriotic work, having assisted in the Red Cross drives, the Liberty Loan campaigns, and all patriotic activities carried on by the school.

THE DELTAS

The Delta Club of North Central enjoys the distinction of being the liveliest boys' organization in the school. Since its origin it has obtained for its members the leaders of the school in all the various activities. At the present time fifty members respond to the roll call.

The Delta Club is one of the oldest of school organizations, having been organized by the Y. M. C. A., during the early days of the school.

In 1916 the two clubs, the Agendas and the Deltas, combined into the Deltas, and as a result the organization is recognized as the most powerful, the liveliest, and the largest organization in the school.

As the club is under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., there is a similarity in the objects of these two institutions. The Deltas stand for clean speech, clean sports, and clean living, and as a preventive of any laxness in living up to their motto, their meetings receive the attention of noted speakers, who address the members on subjects of interest to them. With their motto thus constantly held before them and the results of their successful work apparent throughout the school it leaves no doubt whatsoever of their ability to accomplish great things.

The originality of the club is a striking feature. This quality is very well illustrated in the initiation of new members. Each semester this event is looked forward to as an extremely interesting and amusing spectacle. There is no doubt whatsoever that the club is appreciated much more after the new members have passed through the long and often painful pathway leading to that place where they can be recognized as full-fledged members.

Every year it has been the custom of the club to utilize some of its talent for the entertainment of the public. This entertainment is the annual Delta High Jinks. One of the big events of the year.

This year the Deltas cooperated with the Vox Puellarum to put over the program. The girls gave several clever dancing acts, but the feature of the program probably was the musical comedy, "Araby." This skit was one of the cleverest that has ever been presented by the Deltas. The idea for the play was suggested by Alden McMaster and James Hanifen, and written by L. A. Borah. The leading characters were James Hanifen, Philip Hindley, Alden McMaster, Allen Vincent and Bill Jackson. The chorus, representing the Haremettes, Arabettes and slaves, consisted of twelve Deltas. Music for the occasion was rendered by Ben Harris and his Sin-Copated Orchestra. The play was received with great enthusiasm and capped the climax of a very interesting program.

The Deltas have also taken upon themselves the responsibility of bringing the W. S. C. Glee Club before the public of Spokane, and have always made the affairs a success.

Each semester the Freshmen of the school are given a party in the gymnasium, under the direction of the Deltas. This party is known as the Frosh Frolic. The object is to acquaint the entering class with the upper classes, and to give the Freshmen a general good time.

Thus the club is responsible for a great deal of North Central's spirit, and will always occupy its place as one of the foremost clubs of the school.

THE VOX PUELLARUM SOCIETY

The Vox Puellarum Society was organized in May of 1914 by a group of thirty enthusiastic girls interested in literary work. Miss Gibson was chosen as faculty director, and has worked untiringly with the "Voxers" ever since.

The object of this society is to promote debating, public speaking, a knowledge of parliamentary law, and all forms of literary work, among the girls of North Central High School. The club also extends its interest to all matters pertaining to the welfare of the girls of the school.

Those girls who become members of the Vox Puellarum Society represent the most active and prominent members of the school.

The entrance examinations require an original story, poem, or essay to be submitted and read before the club. The accomplishment of this alone, however, is not sufficient, as the personality and the scholastic standing of the candidates are carefully examined. The original literary contributions are judged by a committee of the faculty, and the candidates are voted upon by the club according to their personal characteristics. A joint committee, comprising the officers of the club, then gives the final decision.

After these requirements are satisfactorily met, the successful candidates become active members in the society.

On October 22, 1914, the Voxers entertained the freshmen "B" girls with a frolic, which has been given semi-annually for the 9B classes ever since. The success of these parties can best be understood by questioning the guests, who are always desirous of praising the society.

It has been the custom of the Voxers to hold Each year it has been the custom of the Voxers to hold the "Vox Puellarum tea." This event been a great success.

Each year since the club was organized, an award of ten dollars has been presented to the Senior "A" girl who has made the greatest progress, achieved high scholarship, and developed her personality to a remarkable degree during her high school career, all of these achievements being accomplished in the face of discouraging difficulties.

In spite of all this active interest in school activities, the club has never failed to display its literary talent. Stories written by the members have appeared in various issues of The Tamarack, and on every possible occasion the ability of the members to write is illustrated.

The Vox Puellarum has also taken an active interest in work pertaining to the war, whenever this work comes within its scope. In 1917, Christmas cheer bags were made by the society and sent to soldiers in France. The girls of the organization also made the large service flag for the school.

Fifteen or twenty Vox girls were represented each week at the Red Cross rooms. This club also took a prominent part in contributing to the Magazine Fund for books, to be sent to the soldiers on the Mexican border. The Armenian Relief Funds, the Red Cross, and various other relief work were also well supported by the club.

A great deal of the success of the club must be attributed to the work of its faculty director, Miss Gibson. She has been an inspiration and a guide to all the members of the club, and under her able directorship the Vox may look to a successful future.

Bobbie's Disastrous Day

It was on one of those dark, dismal days in April that Bobbie Lee stood gazing out of the window into the clouded gray sky.

Rainy days usually prove disastrous to little boys, especially to those of Bobbie's age. They must remain in the house all day, and there is nothing to occupy their mischievous minds. Bobbie was at the age where he longed for excitement and adventure. For him, to remain inside all day was simply beyond endurance.

The child stood at the window looking out at the pouring rain and dark sky, which gave no promise of sunshine. He amused himself for a short time by blowing his breath upon the window pane and drawing queer pictures upon it with his dirty, chubby forefinger. Mrs. Lee discovered him engaged in that pastime, however, and suggested that he might take his toys and go to the attic to play.

This plan did not appeal strongly to Bobbie on first thought, but on consideration, he decided to go, as he had not made a trip to the attic for some time. He slowly gathered up his playthings and, with the air of a martyr, ascended to the attic. There he stood at the top of the stairs, viewing dust-covered trunks and old furniture. It seemed to him, though, that there were no opportunities for amusement in a dingy attic, but at seeing the trunk he thought to himself, "If I could just get into that."

A trunk, to Bobbie's idea, was an extremely mysterious object, and he thought this an excellent opportunity to explore the inside of one. With this inspiration, he dropped his toys and made a bound for the trunk.

He lifted the heavy lid and peeped inside. He found it to be filled with old clothes and relics, which had been kept by his mother for many years.

One by one he took the strange-looking articles out, examining each carefully, and as he brought forth a gorgeous old bright red velvet costume trimmed in gold braid, he exclaimed, "Oh, my! this is just like folks wears in the circus when they rides elephants."

Bobbie studied for a minute, then proceeded to dress himself up like a circus man. But how could he be a circus rider without an elephant to ride? "The cow," he thought, "would make a grand elephant if her horns only came out of her mouth instead of her ears."

He immediately gathered up a bundle of the clothes, crept softly down the back stairs, tip-toed through the kitchen, and left the house, thus escaping the watchful eyes of his mother. On reaching the barn, he dropped the bundle on the ground and began the process of decorating the cow for the parade. Bobbie first draped his grandmother's wedding dress artfully around the cow, catching it here and there with a bunch of artificial orange blossoms; standing at a distance now and then to view the effect. When he had finished the task, the awkward animal, to him, looked positively superb in her new costume.

Next he dressed himself gorgeously in the bright red velvet garb, a fitting one for the occasion, he thought. He walked back and forth, swishing the ample train admiringly.

Mrs. Lee was sewing beside the window, and when glancing out she beheld a very small boy, clothed in a red velvet creation, and astride a large cow which was swathed in much fluffy white veiling. The boy was leading an old white horse, the animal being gowned in an ancient blue party dress. This dress had been worn by Bobbie's grandmother's aunt at King George's coronation, and was highly prized by the Lee family. This beautiful old remnant of glory had been cut to pieces and reconstructed to fit the horse. Tied to the horse was a little dog, bedecked in ribbons and bows.

The stately procession advanced slowly from the barn to the front gate and down the road which led to the village. The march was halted, however, by the frantic cries of Mrs. Lee, but not until it had reached the outskirts of the village.

At eight o'clock that evening, Mr. and Mrs. Lee sat conversing in the living room. A little figure in pajamas came slowly down the stairs.

"Mama," Bobbie said, between sobs and tears, "I'll never dress the cow up in grandma's clothes again if you'll jus' gimme some supper."

"No true and permanent fame can be founded except in labors which promote the happiness of mankind."—Sumner.

Sumner might well have been speaking of the Masque Society when he gave the above quotation, for the "Masquers'" true and permanent fame is the result of labors to promote the happiness of its fellow schoolmates.

No club or society in North Central, it can be safely said, has done the things that the Masque has done to advance North Central's reputation among high schools.

"Masquers", for such these students proudly call themselves, have only to point to their record or to the lists of past members to convince anyone that the Masque is one of the school's finest organizations.

The Masque Society is essentially a dramatic club, although it patronizes the arts, music, and poetry. In the past it has produced and presented numerous successes. Among them are: "The Butterflies", "The Man on the Box", "You Never Can Tell", "Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary", "Fanny and the Servant Problem", and "Land of Heart's Desire".

The Masque is a member of the Drama League of America, a league to promote a higher class of theatrical art. The last production, "The Land of Heart's Desire", from the pen of W. B. Yeats, typifies the coming of a new era in the drama, that of the artistic presentation of a real piece of literature.

To many students, this will make clear the Masque attitude, "Unless you are good you can't get in", as such productions require interpretation by actors of the highest skill.

CAST OF "LAND OF HEART'S DESIRE"

The Masque has truly been fortunate in the directors that it has had. On these directors depends the whole success of the organization. That they have done their parts can be seen by reviewing the record of the Masque. The former directors of the Masque are: Mr. Sawtelle, Miss Bigelow, Miss Broomhall, and Miss Kelly. The way the Masque has been handled under the direction of Miss Marguerite C. Motie, the present Masque director, can not be praised too highly. Under the direction of Miss Motie, the Masque has produced two plays, "Fanny and the Servant Problem", and the "Land of Heart's Desire".

There are other things besides footlight achievements that the Masque is proud of. One of these is "North Central", our school song. The Masque was the one which, growing dissatisfied with the plagiaristic "Red and Black", offered a prize for the best original song. The present "North Central" is the result. It was written by Donald and William Wilson, and the Masque had the song published. Today there is nothing of which it is more proud than our own "North Central".

The Masque likewise has set a worthy example for other clubs in the purchasing of books for the school library. These are easily identified by the Masque bookplate they contain. Every year the club presents the school with fifty dollars' worth of books, which are chosen by Miss Fargo as the ones most needed to fill a gap in our shelves.

At graduation time the Masque will lose the following members: Geraldine Moore, Elliott Tarbell, James L. Hanifen, Ira Cook, and Robert Irvine.

The other members are: Irving Anschutz, Harvey Brassard, Frank Carter, George Daniel, Vernon Frost, Worth Jones, Irving Lindlahr, Harold Marsh, Robert Mosher, Stanley Newton, Allen Perry, and Ernest Wetherall.

The Grub Street Club constitutes the only boys' literary society of the North Central High School. The club was founded in 1916, under the supervision of L. W. Sawtelle, then head of the English department. The earlier period of the club, existence was notable for the enthusiastic support given by those interested in literary work. Since that time, the club has grown rapidly, until now it has an active membership roll of twenty.

The name "Grub Street" is derived from the name of the famous Grub Street in London, on which lived many of the world's literary men.

The object of the organization is to promote all literary activities in the school. It is also constantly on the alert to discover any literary talent, and then direct this talent along the proper channels. The amount of such talent lying dormant is surprising, and the club is to be congratulated for its success in discovering and developing those possessing ability in the literary field. Some of the brightest literary lights in the history of the school have been produced, largely as a result of the literary course which the club offers.

However, the club does not limit itself to active participation in literary pursuits only, but extends its interest and material support to all school activities. The general welfare of the student body is carefully considered before any decision is rendered which affects, directly or indirectly, the future prosperity and success of the school.

Taking all points into consideration, the club is one of the liveliest organizations of the school. While it is comparatively young, it has reached a point in the eyes of the students from which it commands respect and admiration, and there is no doubt that under the able directorship of Mr. Holcomb, the club will continue to enjoy a successful and prosperous career.

Grub Street

In the subways of London, which are seldom frequented by the better class of English people, is located a street still pregnant with the ancient English atmosphere. At the present time this street is known by tourists as Milton Street, and is visited by travelers who are interested in English literature. The connection between a street in England and English literature will become more apparent if it is known that Milton Street, formerly known as Grub Street, is the birthplace and the former abode of many of England's greatest literary geniuses.

Here dwelt numerous struggling authors and poets in dire poverty. This existence, made worse by the cruel and unrelenting criticism given them by their fellowmen in more desirable circumstances, imbued them with an eternal hatred for the world in general, and especially for the wealthy ruling class.

They gave vent to their bitterness in their literature. An immense amount was written, but all reflects a hatred and a jealousy for all those in better circumstances than themselves. In spite of this most undesirable quality, some great literature was produced. For this reason, the literary people of the world hold in honor the name of Grub Street.

The Art Club was organized a year and a half ago under the direction of Miss Stowell. It now has twenty-four active members.

The aim of the club is to promote the interests of art among the students of North Central. During this semester the club has been making a study of the pictures in the building. Two open meetings for the public have been held. One, a lecture by Dr. Myers on Japanese prints, was illustrated by his fine collection of prints and textiles. The second, on Oriental rugs, was by Mr. Cartozan.

Other lectures and exhibits are planned for next year, and the publishing of an interesting catalog of the school art collection.

LA TERTULIA

One of the liveliest language clubs in the school is La Tertulia, an organization devoted to the interests of the Spanish language in the school. Few clubs have accomplished more in various activities than this one. During the period of the war it was one of the most active in war work, the most notable of which, perhaps, was the drive for the purpose of securing books for the boys in the training camps. Since the end of the war, however, it has gone back to its original purpose: that of making the study of Spanish more widespread throughout the school.

It is a well-known fact that the study of Spanish is of more practical advantage to Americans than is the study of any other modern language. Few people realized this until the war, but when the European market was cut off, making it necessary for the Latin-American peoples to trade with us, we began to realize to some extent the value of the commerce of the South American countries. We saw for the first time that here to the south of us lay a vast and undeveloped country, with as many natural resources as our own. We also became aware of the many fields of business still unexplored which offered undreamed rewards to the ambitious. With the realization of all these things came a nationwide movement to encourage the study of Spanish in the schools in order to foster a better understanding of the ideals of the Latin-American races. This was the idea which caused the formation of the Spanish Club several semesters ago.

In carrying out its original purpose, the club has succeeded remarkably well. This has been accomplished by various ways: by lectures, by giving Spanish playlets, and by exhibits of pictures dealing with different phases of life in Spain and the Latin-American countries.

Under the able directorship of Mr. Salzmann, the club has rounded out a very successful year. Several lively social meetings have been held at the homes of the members, and a number of interesting programs given. The last, and most important social event of the year, the annual picnic, was an unmarred success.

In these days of inventions and constructive work, the interests of people turn to a study of the great scientific progress of the day. And so the Engineering Society was founded for the purpose of studying at first hand those scientific questions which are constantly presenting themselves. The architectural and mechanical problems which occupy the attention of the leading men of the present day are almost too wonderful to be fully understood by many, but there is no doubt that a study of such subjects affords an untold amount of interest as well as a mass of valuable information.

The club would not be doing justice to its members if it limited itself to a study of one certain topic, although the thoroughness with which a topic can be absorbed is not as complete as would be possible otherwise. Therefore, in order to cover as much subject-matter as possible, and to obtain a general knowledge upon scientific topics, the members interest themselves in all scientific matters of the day that come under their observation.

The club has always been successful in accomplishing its object, and there is every reason to believe that the club will efficiently maintain the high standard which it now has under the directorship of Mr. Rhodes.

At various times the members of the club have visited such industrial plants of the city as the Tru-Blu Biscuit Company, the Spokane Heat & Power Company, the Spokane Paper Mills, the Portland Cement Company, the Spokane Gas Company, the Cascade Laundry, the Ryan Fruit Company, and the Washington Water Power Company.

The members of the club at various times have been addressed by prominent men who are interested in the welfare of the club. These men include Foster Russell, mechanical engineer; Mr. Butler, city engineer; Herbert Smith, patent attorney; and Lieutenant Mitchell of the British army, all of whom are authorities on scientific subjects.

The Wranglers

The Wranglers' Club is a society composed of boys from both high schools, which has for its object the promotion of oratorical work in the two schools. It has been noted for some time for Wranglers' Extemporaneous Speaking Contest. The contest was not held this year because of the handicap imposed by the shortening of the school term. In the past, however, this contest was one of the big oratorical events of the year. A large number of contestants were always entered in the preliminaries and a great deal of oratorical talent was brought to light that would otherwise have been lost. In last year's contest, Harold Eby won first prize and Walter Blair was awarded second honors.

The other members are: Dorothy Anderson, Pauline Benson, Albert Collins, Mabel Darr, Jack Dodd, John Hutchins, Grace Jacobson, Jack Kranse, Ralph Lantz, May Lantzy, Lorin Markham, Elizabeth McClung, Willard McLachlan, Donald Merrin, Clarence Nickerson, Elsie Nordquist, Frank Paulissen, Margaret Rapp, Ernest Stalberg, Richard Stephens, Josephine Williams, and Grace Wollmoth.

The inventions, both constructive and destructive, which have resulted from the war, were possible only by the application of mathematics; hence this subject has taken on a greater significance today than it has ever in the past. While very complex and covering a wide range, it affords a great interest to the practical mind.

The Mathematics Club, consisting at present of twenty-two members, has for its purpose the furthering of an interest in the study of mathematics, as the name of the club implies. In the past, the work of the club has been carried on in a very interesting manner, and the future work promises to be even more interesting.

In order to promote as extensive an interest as possible in mathematics, an algebra contest is held every fall, and a geometry contest every spring. The winner of each has his name engraved on a silver cup, which becomes his property, and also upon the silver mounted plate, which is the property of the club. The winner is always deserving of his prize, as the competition is always very keen, and a thorough knowledge of the subject is necessary to successfully accomplish the required work. The last geometry contest, held May 22, was won by Frank Paulissen, who did not commit a single error.

The club itself is worthy of a great deal of praise. Every member is intensely interested in the welfare of the club, and is constantly on the alert to increase the interest of all students in this very important subject: mathematics.

Those students who are members have maintained a grade of B in mathematics for three consecutive semesters. Thus, the club contains those students who are well versed in mathematics, and well qualified to represent the club.

The Mathematics Society owes much of its success to the untiring efforts of Miss Kaye, its director, who is largely responsible for the original methods employed in arousing interest in mathematics, and there is no doubt that this society will continue to enjoy a successful career.

The Chemistry Club is a club which aims to develop an increased interest in chemistry. The members are eligible as soon as they enroll in the chemistry classes.

The importance of the study of chemistry is often underestimated. The recent war is sufficient proof of a practical application of the principles of this science. Out of the war has come, amid other wonderful accomplishments, the re-establishment of chemistry to its high position among the sciences.

The chemistry taught at North Central, while being only the rudiments of the real practical application of it, starts the embryo chemist out with a sound understanding of the science. It is the aim of the Chemistry Club to promote more widespread interest in the subject, and, if possible, give special aid to those who intend to become chemists.

Another feature of the club is the lectures, by Dr. C. Meyers, the director of the club. These lectures deal with different new and interesting discoveries in the field of chemistry. Dr. Meyers also gives many interesting lectures on foreign countries and the birds and plants which are native to them. These lectures, which are delivered every two or three weeks, are attended by many outside students as well as the club members. This "open house" provision of the lectures gives the whole student body a chance to hear them.

As was the case with the majority of the school clubs, the Chemistry Club gave a picnic at Newman Lake Decoration day. The members "fed up" and came home feeling happy as a bunch of babies with a bag of candy.

In all, the Chemistry Club may well be termed a "peppy" organization.

Classes

The Senior B's

OFFICERS

William Grieve	President	Harold Gleason	Treasurer
Margaret Ellis	Vice-President	Archie McDonald	Secretary
Miss Kaye	Faculty Director

The classic event of the day, however, was the "big feed", in which all the members present from the two classes were contestants.

Although the class is somewhat smaller than the recent senior "B" classes, it has balanced this deficiency with its enthusiasm and accomplishments. For this reason, the class takes a stand with its predecessors.

Now that the school year is ended and this class will take its place as the next graduating class, the success of the class and its benefit to North Central bids fair to come up to the previous standards.

The senior "B" class has contributed wonderfully to the activities of North Central. The leading athletes have come from this class. In track, football, swimming, and many of the girls' athletics, members of this class have ranked first among them all. The support the class has given to school affairs has been true to the old North Central tradition. Not only has the class proved itself adequately represented on the gridiron and track, but it has also engaged its talents along the dramatic and oratorical lines to a triumphant end, achieving much for its own honor and aiding North Central in maintaining her lead in these activities.

The class gave, as the annual senior "A" entertainment, the most successful picnic of the year. The picnickers went to Liberty Lake, and there the time was enjoyably spent in boating, swimming, and enjoying the many attractions of the popular lake resort. To the committees entrusted with the handling of the affair, much credit must be given, since the success of the picnic was their achievement.

The Junior A class will probably have the distinction, upon being graduated next June, of being the largest class graduated from the school in its history.

Another important attribute of this class is the unusual amount of class and school spirit demonstrated by them. Their class meetings, held after school, have had an attendance which certainly deserves the envy of all the other classes in the school. Its showing at the parties and picnics has been not only surprising, but remarkable. The school spirit of the class is faultless. Many of its members are foremost in athletics and scholastic endeavors. Unusual talent is displayed in the dramatic line, the roles of the "American Twins" in the Japanese operetta this spring were played by two Junior A girls. From the members of the class have been selected many officers in the governing organizations of the school, namely, the Girls' League, and the Boys' Federation.

The picnic held this spring at Liberty lake was only an added demonstration that in work or play the Junior A's are "there" with the "pep." Everyone had an excellent time and, surprising as it may seem, the class treasury was not impaired in the least by the celebration.

A great deal of credit is owed to the faculty director, Miss Oldt, and to the officers for this semester in handling the affairs of the class.

The Junior B's

OFFICERS

Kenneth Williams	President	Arthur Taylor	Vice-President
		Gladys Erickson		Secretary

This class deserves attention from the other classes in North Central, since its ability as a doer of things is its foremost characteristic. The class spirit is a rival of the best the school can boast of. The undertakings of the class have always proved a success.

This class was responsible for one of the most successful picnics, save the senior "B" and senior "A" picnic, of the school year.

The picnic was given at Liberty Lake and afforded much enjoyment for the class. Boating, swimming, and fun-making were the leading diversions of the day. A delightful lunch was served. Special means of transportation to and from the lake were provided for by a committee appointed to handle this important part of the picnic.

The Sophomore A's

This is composed of many of the liveliest and most progressive students in school. The class has great prospects of becoming an active part of the school in its many endeavors.

As a rule, a lower class does not participate actively in school activities, but develops its talents in its last two years. But this class has proved an exception, and has started early in its achievement, developing its interest in school and working toward a triumphant end as a senior "A" class with this spirit can not be a failure.

The enthusiasm of the class is one of its most admirable features. To say that the class has not come up to all expectations is to belittle it. So far, every member has exerted indispensable influence, and the class as a whole has been quick to respond to North Central and her needs. Whether the one is responsible for the other's zest and enthusiasm, we can not say, but neither is independent of the other.

The unqualified support of every member of the class is given to the endeavors of the class. Class parties of the past have been among the successful accomplishments of the many classes this year.

The Sophomore B's

The year's activities have been a real test of the merits and life that a class had. Whether or not the class would respond and develop, so far as possible, its talents, has all been brought out. Not a single failure to respond was found. The upper classes, as should be expected, responded with social affairs as under normal conditions. But the efforts of the lower classes is not to be entirely forgotten.

Chief among these has been the Sophomore "B" class, which has maintained its reputation as a live wire in spite of adverse circumstances.

Much rich talent is present in the class and has made itself known to the school. The class, so far, has not been outdone in any school enterprise, but has been among those topping the list in school achievements.

Every class, especially in its first two years, comes in contact with difficulties and reverses. The Sophomore "B's" do not profess to have avoided them. The general weakness of most classes is to yield to those destructive, external as well as internal, forces.

The success of a class depends, to a large degree, upon its ability to combat and survive these forces. The class that does this succeeds. That is one of the reasons why the sophomore "B" class is developing into a class that North Central, in years to come, may be proud to boast of as one of her many distinctly individual classes.

May this admirable feature be an incentive to the classes yet to come. And may they, too, respond with the splendid spirit that the sophomore "B" class has to North Central and her many needs.
